Confederate Pension Act Declared Constitutional.

The Confederate Pension Act passed by the last General Assembly providing for pensions for indigent soldiers was declared constitutional Saturday at Frankfort by Circuit Judge R. L. Stout. Judge Stout entered an order instructing the State Auditor to issue warrants to Confederate veterans for the money due them.

First Assistant Attorney General Charles Morris, who was present when the decision was handed down, notified the court that he would prepare an appeal at once and the case will be taken to the Court of Appeals for final decision.

In rendering his opinion Judge Stout remarked that the principal contention of the State was that the Confederate soldiers should not be pensioned as they had not rendered any service to the State of Kentucky during the war. He said that he differed from this view, as he believed that they had rendered a great service and should be pensioned.

The constitutionality of the act of the last Legislature was argued Friday in the State Fiscal Court before Judge Stout by Assistant Attorney General Charles H. Morris for the State and Col. W. J. Stone, Commissioner of Pensions, and Judge James H. Hazelrigg for the Confederate veterans. The principal speech was made by Col. Stone, who stated that although he was not a lawyer he felt it his duty to be present and say a word for the Confederate soldiers.

Negro Killed in Brawl at Rudles Mills.

As a result of a difficulty which occurred in Reubenville, a negro settlement near Rudles Mills, Sunday night Arnold Fisher was shot and instantly killed by Frank Johnson, alias Frank Talbott. Both are negroes.

The shooting occurred at the colored church and grew out of a joke which is alleged to have been played by Fisher upon Johnson. The two men were in Paris Sunday night driving to town in Johnson's buggy. They remained in Paris some time when Fisher is alleged to have taken Johnson's buggy and returned to his home. Johnson was compelled to walk to the home of Jane Talbott, where he was staying and arrived there late Sunday afternoon.

After the negro had arrived home he secured a shot gun saying to some of the family that he was going to get himself a man. Then he walked to the church in Reubenville, where he waited until the services were over and accosted Fisher as he came out.

Hot words, it is said, passed between the two men and Johnson emptied the contents of the gun into Arnold's body. The charge took effect in the left side, tearing away a large portion of the abdomen and almost severing the body. Death resulted instantly.

There were a large number of eye witnesses to the affair as the services at the church had just ended and the crowds attending were preparing to return home.

A telephone message was received in Paris a short time after the shooting and Deputy Sheriff W. F. Talbot and Coroner Rudolph Davis went to the scene of the crime. The latter ordered the body of the dead negro removed to his home, where it was prepared for burial. After the shooting Johnson made his escape and has not been apprehended.

The negro accused of the crime is said to have been very peaceable, and was scarcely twenty years of age, while the man he killed bore a bad reputation and has more than once figured in difficulties and shooting scrapes. On one occasion about six years ago he was one of the principals in a shooting affray at a colored camp meeting in Cynthiana, in which one man was killed and three or four injured.

He was indicted in the Harrison Circuit Court on an indictment for manslaughter and sentenced to the penitentiary for five years. After serving his time he was released and returned to Bourbon county where he has since lived.

JOHNSON CAPTURED.

Sheriff A. S. Thompson received information yesterday afternoon to the effect that Frank Johnson, who shot and killed Arnold Fisher at Rudles Mills Sunday night, was hiding on the farm of Jane Talbott, on the Colville pike a few miles from Rudles Mills.

Deputy Sheriffs W. F. Talbot and J. O. Marshall left this city yesterday afternoon about five o'clock in an automobile for the scene. Both were armed with shotguns, as it was feared difficulty would be experienced in effecting the arrest of the negro accused of the crime.

The negro offered no resistance and submitted to arrest and was brought to Paris about six o'clock where he was lodged in jail. While he would discuss the shooting but little he said the man he killed had been giving him trouble and was after him when he fired the shot which took his life.

Retires After Lengthy Business Career.

After a business career extending over a period of seventy years, Mr. W. M. Hinton, perhaps the oldest jeweler in Kentucky, retired from business actively last Saturday.

Mr. Hinton, who is one of the oldest citizens of this city, began his career at the age of twelve years, learning the jewelry and watchmaking trade, which he has followed for more than seventy years. For the past half century, with the exception of two years, Mr. Hinton conducted his business at the same stand in which the jewelry store of his son, Mr. C. O. Hinton, is located.

Two years ago he disposed of the business he had so successfully conducted for so many years, to his son, but remained in the store following his trade. Last Saturday marked his permanent retirement from business activity and in the future Mr. C. O. Hinton will have complete charge of the business.

The retirement of Mr. Hinton marks the passing of one of the most central figures in the business of this city. He is well known throughout Central Kentucky and one of the most prominent and popular citizens of Paris.
